DISCOVER A CYCLING NIRVANA IN THE ISLE OF MAN

Birthplace to Olympic medallists Mark Cavendish and Peter Kennaugh, its varied terrain set against spectacular backdrops of epic landscapes and miles of sweeping coastline make the Isle of Man a dream to ride.

This guide outlines the Island's popular and iconic 'Raad Daawheeyl' coastal cycling route. At over 90miles, it is a demanding but rewarding route which provides the opportunity to cycle around a complete nation. Challenge yourself with the full route or choose one of the three shorter routes for a less strenuous but no less extraordinary ride.

Whether you ride for pleasure or fitness, the 'Raad Daawheeyl' will provide an unforgettable experience whilst providing a unique way to tour the Island as each route passes a rich variety of Manx National Heritage sites, cycling pit stops and ever changing landscapes. From calm and colourful countryside and pretty glen valleys to magnificent coastal views and rolling hills, every twist and turn on each of these routes will open your eyes to something new.

In this guide we've also highlighted a selection of fantastic cycling pit stops around the Island which act as a great place to meet other riders, get advice and even repairs whilst you refuel before returning to explore the many stunning paths the Island has to offer. Alternatively, check out our Taste brochure for an extensive list of local eateries offering the best our vibrant food sector has to offer at Starting on South Quay, make your way to the top of Douglas Head before heading south towards the Island's former capital, Castletown.

From here, take the road to Port St Mary and then onto Howe Road which will descend to the Island's most southernly tip - The Sound and Calf of Man, considered one of the most scenic places in the British Isles.

From the Sound, make your way through Port Erin and start your climb to the top of the Sloc known as the Round Table. As you descend and continue along the coastal road to Dalby, be sure to take in, or take a detour to, the secluded beauty spot of Niarbyl. From here make your way back onto the main road which will lead you to Peel.

Be sure to explore Peel before taking the Ramsey Road through to Kirk Michael and up to the Coast Road to Jurby.

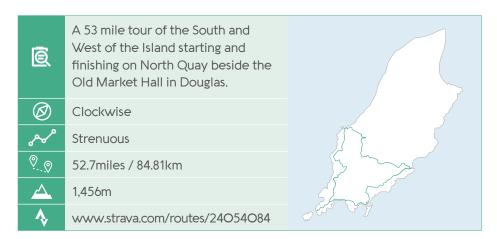

From here it's a smooth journey passing a choice of nature reserves on remote countryside roads before reaching Bride and the turning point towards the Point of Ayre.

Onwards to Ramsey, consider taking a short detour to the historic estate and gardens of Milntown before taking the eastern coast road back to Douglas, passing the Great Laxey Wheel in the village of Laxey en route.

Begin your journey by crossing the bridge onto South Quay in Douglas and making your way to the top of Douglas Head for a superb view of the bay. A ride along the scenic Marine Drive will reward you with extraordinary views as you make your way south towards the Island's former capital, Castletown. Be sure to take a pit stop and explore the medieval castle, Castle Rushen - home to the Kings and Lords of Mann. Extend your stop and stay for some delicious refreshments.

From here, take the road to Port St Mary and then onto Howe Road which will descend to The Sound and Calf of Man - one of the Island's natural wonders, abundant in wildlife and blessed with stunning panoramic sea views.

From here, make your way through the beautiful beachside town of Port Erin before starting your climb to the top of the Sloc where you will be rewarded with breathtaking views. As you descend and continue along the coastal road to Dalby, be sure to take in the far reaching views of Niarbyl, or take a detour to this place of great geological importance and admire its peaceful bay, coastal paths and thatched cottages. From here make your way back onto the main road which will lead you to Peel, famous for its stunning sunsets, sandy beach and its magnificent castle.

Passing through St Johns along the country roads on your way back to Douglas, look out for Tynwald Hill, one of the Island's most distinctive landmarks which plays host to an open air meeting of the Island's parliament, Tynwald, once a year.

This route takes you out of the Island's capital, through Laxey and north to Ramsey.

As you climb out of Douglas, the route north takes you past Conrhenny Plantation where you will be rewarded with spectacular views. Take a quick pit stop at King Orry's grave- the largest known Megalithic tomb on the Isle of Man said to belong to King Orry, believed to be one of our greatest kings and founder of Mann.

Continue north past Glen Mona and into Ramsey before heading along the coast to Maughold. Be sure to take a look over your shoulder for the sweeping vista of Ramsey and the northern beaches.

The coastal route home takes you via Laxey where you can visit the Great Laxey Water Wheel- the largest surviving waterwheel of its kind in the world. Or why not head on down to the promenade and refuel, before the home stretch, at The Shed.

From Ramsey's Queen Pier, make your way west out of town along the famous TT course as you head towards Andreas.

Make your way past Andreas Church and through St Judes before reaching the Curraghs where you might see a wild wallaby or two. From here, it's a smooth journey passing nature reserves on remote countryside roads. Motor fanatics should make time to stop via the Isle of Man Motor Museum in Jurby before reaching Bride and the turning point to the Point of Ayre.

From here, make your way back into Ramsey where you can explore a selection of independent boutiques or head to the historic Miltown Estate and Gardens for a post-ride wander and scone!

Alternatively, celebrate the end of your ride with a visit to The Fynoderee Distillery to sample award-winning Master Distiller Gerard Macluskey's range of uniquely blended gins and vodka using Manx grown or locally-foraged botanicals.

GETTING HERE

By sea:

The Isle of Man Steam Packet operates regular ferry services from the North West of England all season, and the East Coast of Ireland in the summer months. Bring you bicycle aboard for free when travelling as a foot passenger.

By air:

Soar across the sky in as little as half an hour, whilst taking in the Island's sublime landscape from the air. Upon arriving, you can then choose to rent a bike from one of the local bike hire shops.
